Hamilton, Brook, Smith & Reynolds, P.C., is a full-service intellectual property law firm founded in 1980. Since that time, the firm has grown in size and stature. There are now over 55 attorneys, patent agents and technology specialists who represent many independent inventors, start-up companies, corporations of all sizes including Fortune 500 companies, as well as academic and research institutions. These inventors, companies and institutions are located in the Boston area, across the United States and around the world.

Services that are provided by Hamilton, Brook, Smith & Reynolds, P.C. include all aspects of patent application preparation and prosecution, patent litigation, trademark prosecution and litigation, due diligence studies, patent infringement analyses, licensing negotiations and license drafting, copyright and trade secret advice, and intellectual property counseling.

The scientific and technical knowledge of the members of the firm is extensive. Most of the firms members have, in addition to law degrees, advanced degrees in the sciences and/or professional technical experience with strong competencies in biotechnology, chemistry, computer hardware and software, telecommunications, medical devices, physics, electrical engineering, chemical engineering and mechanical engineering. The firm has a deserved reputation for delivering quality work in a timely fashion.
